Newsletter

Vol. 3

Message from the President

Dear Colleagues and Friends,

On behalf of all members of Asian Society of Gynecologic Oncology (ASGO), it is a great pleasure for me to give you Presidential message in the 3rd Newsletter of ASGO.

As you well know, the societies for physicians majoring in gynecologic cancer worldwide are SGO in the US, ESGO in Europe, IGCS in World, and ASGO in Asia. ASGO is the fastest growing society on behalf of Asia, including the most populous population and patients in the world. Thanks to the founders of the Society, ASGO has made tremendous progress despite its' 11 year short history.

Over the past 11 years, we have successfully held five ASGO Biennial meetings and Workshops each. It has been good memories to discuss and share the progress of new developments in caring gynecologic cancer patients in Asian countries, and to deepen friendship with old friends and make new friends.

In particular, the 5th ASGO Workshop at Suwon, Korea in August 2018 was extremely successful. We had lectures on topics in a variety of fields from distinguished speakers from Asia and around the world. I am confident that the conference would contribute to improving patient outcomes in our field in Asia.

However, a lot of work is still waiting for us, because Asia not only has the largest number of population but also gynecologic cancer patients in the world.

The Journal of Gynecologic Oncology (JGO), the official journal of ASGO, is one of the leading journals in gynecologic oncology in the world with its impact factors reaching 3.34 in 2017. I am deeply grateful to the editorial board members who are constantly striving to maintain the highest quality journal.

JGO has evolved since its publication in English in 2009, starting with the official journal of the Korean SGO in 1990. In particular, it was designated as the official journal of ASGO in 2011 and has since developed further. Since this year, Japan SGO has decided to publish the JGO in cooperation with ASGO and KSGO. On behalf of ASGO, I welcome and appreciate the decision of the JSOG. I would like to publish a joint community of all ASGO member countries as well as JSOG. In addition, I sincerely encourage Asian gynecologists to join the ASGO membership and submit valuable journals to the JGO.

As reported in last year's newsletter, one of the key decisions of the 13th board of Councils at the 5th Biennale in Tokyo in December 2017 was to hold conferences across Asia outside Japan and Korea. Therefore, the 2020 Taipei Workshop, the 2021 Bangkok Biennale, and the 2022 Beijing Workshop will be held in sequence. I would like to make this change an opportunity for society to expand and develop, and to ask all members to cooperate with this change.

I am convinced that the Society has contributed to improving the results of gynecologic cancer patients in Asia, which is ASGO's mission and vision. However, it is still not enough in some areas of Asia. In particular, I think there should be more educational programs for young doctors to achieve the purpose of the society. To this purpose, we had an ASGO session at the 25th Asian & Oceanic Congress of Obstetrics and Gynecology (AOCOG) held in Hong Kong in June 2017, as well as sending expert professors to give educational lectures for domestic conferences in various countries.

I also want to strengthen the relationship with our sisterhood societies such as AFOG, IGCS, ESGO and SGO. Establishing partnerships with these societies help us to become a truly global society devoted to improving the outcomes of gynecologic cancer patients in Asia. ASGO will make a joint effort to support relevant international societies in the future.

Finally, on behalf of ASGO, I strongly encourage you to participate in the following upcoming meeting in Korea the 6th Biennial meeting of ASGO. I firmly believe that this meeting will be an opportunity for Asian doctors to improve their knowledge of this area and to allow all participants to have a broader view of gynecologic cancers.

I hope that the ASGO will play a leading role in creating environment of systematic research, education and care for all patients suffering from gynecologic cancers in Asia.

"Toward the best care for the gynecologic cancer patients in Asia"

Hee-Sug Ryu, MD, PhD

*President, Asian Society of Gynecologic Oncology, President and CEO, Ajou University Medical Center,
President, Korean Cancer Association,
Professor, Division of Gynecologic Oncology,
Ajou University School of Medicine*

The 6th Biennial meeting of ASGO will be held at Songdo Conventia in Incheon, Korea from 10th to 12th of October 2019. The 6th Biennial meeting will cover the latest findings of gynecologic cancer, as well as the future of radiation therapy, chemotherapy / targeted agent and beyond. In addition, we will discuss the possibility of the Asian guidelines and position statement for gynecologic cancer, clinical trials of Asian countries, and have a guidance session for early career researchers.

The Asian Society of Gynecologic Oncology is an organization comprised of researchers in many Asian countries that are focused on the research, prevention, and clinical management of gynecological cancers. The biennial meetings have previously produced a number of results, which have been presented around the world. This trend will continue in the upcoming meetings, in which we expect even more highly precise research results to be presented. Furthermore, we will continue to enrich our research on gynecologic oncology and education programs for young doctors.

Message from the ASGO 2019 Organizing Committee Chair (Seung-Cheol Kim)

It is my great honor to write this letter as the Chairman of the organizing Committee of the 6th ASGO meeting that will be held this October at Songdo Convensia in Incheon, Korea.

We know that ASGO has been growing rapidly after its 1st Biennial Meeting in Tokyo in 2009 into an organization with far reaching influence on the world's foundation for advancement of Gynecologic Oncology and to the improvement of the women's healthcare.

ASGO is an organization comprised of gynecologic oncologists and all medical professionals including basic researchers in many Asian countries. ASGO's goal is focused on the research, prevention, and clinical management of gynecological cancers.

In order to achieve this goal, collaboration among Asian countries is very essential. The Biennial Meeting of ASGO is our greatest opportunity to exchange expert opinions through lectures and presentations by researchers from all over the world.

The 6th Biennial Meeting will be held in Songdo Incheon, Korea from October 10 to October 12 in 2019. This meeting is very important for collaboration amongst Asian countries for further advancement of screening, diagnosis, treatment, prevention, and research of female cancers.

In the 6th Biennial Meeting of ASGO given the importance of collaboration through the ASGO meeting for the advancement of Gynecologic Oncology in Asia, I strongly encourage everyone to attend this meeting.

I sincerely hope that all of you will join together, deepen our friendship, and collaborate for the further improvement of women's healthcare in Asia and all over the world.

Thank you very much for your time and endless co-operation.

With best wishes,

Seung-Cheol Kim, MD, PhD

Scientific Program Guide of ASGO 2019

Dear Colleagues,

On behalf of the Organizing Committee, it is our great pleasure to invite you to the Asian Society of Gynecologic Oncology (ASGO) 6th Biennial Meeting to be held from October 10-12, 2019 in Asia's hub city of Incheon, Korea.

Following the tradition of the previous meetings, ASGO 6th Biennial Meeting will provide you with the opportunity to learn about the latest clinical advances as well as international developments in research, practice, and treatment for the best care of women suffering from gynecologic cancer.

The meeting offers a unique program that covers the latest, cutting-edge information, including innovative developments in surgery, chemotherapy/targeted agents, radiotherapy, imaging, and pathology. Translational aspects will be updated. Shingo Fujii Medical Academy will give us the opportunity to learn surgical techniques, exchange ideas, and form new and maintain existing friendships.

World-class experts in gynecologic oncology have been invited. They will share their experiences and perspectives on individual topics, including combination of chemotherapeutic and targeted agents, minimally invasive surgery and other surgical issues in gynecologic cancers, hereditary breast and ovarian cancer, cervical cancer screening, and revised FIGO staging of cervical cancer.

We hope that this Biennial Meeting will be a platform to share the latest knowledge and promote the unity among our members.

The 5th International Workshop of ASGO Summary

- Report on the 5th International Workshop of ASGO by young doctors from Indonesia

Overview

The Asian Society of Gynecologic Oncology (ASGO) 5th International Workshop on Gynecologic Oncology in collaboration with the Korean Society of Gynecologic Oncology (KSGO) held from August 24-25th 2018 in Suwon, Korea. Program provide me with the latest, cutting edge information including innovative developments in surgery, chemotherapy/targeted agents, radiotherapy, and pathology, updated and developments in targeted therapies highlighted. The Workshop also introduce guidelines for early career researchers, clinical trial updates in Asia and discuss the latest research trends.

Objective

Provide me to develop knowledge, skills, and professional network, ultimately to contribute to the women's health in my country and region.

Discussion and Training activities

I was arrived in Korea one day before the workshop on August 24th in the early morning at Incheon and directly meet my colleges from Indonesia at airport and go to Suwon. On the way to Suwon we visit Korean heritage place and got very pleasure experience there with so many setting and attraction. Suwon is a very historical place in terms of Korean History and has a perfectly preserved old fortress which is now listed as a UNESCO World Heritage. We visit the fortress and we had a very surprise how beautiful the city that surrounded by the fortress, the city was very clean and everything is so well organized. After the short city tour we go to Ajou University Hospital and applied my poster there. My poster presentation is about rare case with hemangiopericytoma of ovary on young girl after he was diagnose before with hemangioma at her lower limb, and I try to evaluate the correlation. Then we go to Hotel that provide to us.

The first day of workshop I join the ASGO session in the morning, in provide me with a lot of update about cervical cancer include about the precancerous lesion on HPV, vaccination and screening method also about update on management about fertility sparing surgery and the controversy about minimal access surgery for radical hysterectomy. Some of the update I think can we applied at my country especially my region.

After the first session continue with ovarian cancer, there a lot of development about the diagnosis and management of ovarian cancer include highlighted targeted therapy in ovarian cancer. After the lunch, there are lot of surgical technique presented in KSGO session. In the night, we all delight with dinner at Banquet where we gave time to introduce our delegation from Indonesia, the food also great and we enjoyed it.

KSGO forum provides a platform to communicate on the issues between the young gynecology who are participating in the workshop especially at this 12th workshop recent development in radiation oncology and surgical techniques will be presented with introduction of novel clinical trials. The film session will give us the opportunity to learn surgical techniques, exchange ideas between we the young gynecology and how can we develop in the future.

On the second day, the session is about many clinical trial in Asia and also oral presentation from many country also one from my country. we are very pleased with the session because there are lot of method and research can be applied in my country especially in my region.

The most fascination about this workshop was the material that presented in this workshop is almost the latest update with specific issue that we faced in manage gynecology cancer, and also the program also provide many young gynecologist to present their research.

After the workshop, me and college from Indonesia have a really enjoyed trip to some of the exiting site in south Korea like try the Korean railroad that provide us with many scenery that is so beautiful, then we go to Nami island the special place that in our country know as a place where winter sonata movie take place.

Finally, after the workshop we hope we can develop knowledge, skills, and professional network in our country by enhance its relations and partnership with global organizations and national societies broadening. In the end can ultimately to contribute to the women's health in the needy countries and regions. I and my college also very appreciate for secretariat of ASGO and KSGO and all of organizing committee, lectured and all college from other country that have gave us many of knowledge and experience.

- Report on the 5th Int'l Workshop of ASGO by Young Doctors from Thailand

On the 24-25th August 2018, Ajou University Hospital, Suwon, Korea held the 5th Asian Society of Gynecologic Oncology (ASGO) International Workshop on Gynecologic Oncology in conjunction with 12th Korean Society of Gynecologic Oncology (KSGO) for Young Gynecologic Oncologists. The aim of this workshop is to encourage early career as gynecologic oncologist and built firm relationship between young doctors from various countries, through sharing their researches and studies. The two-day workshop was packed with all aspect of interesting gynecologic cancer topics, brought by many world-class gynecologic oncologists from many different countries in Asian and other regions of the world to share their knowledge and experience. The event welcomed 257 participants from 15 countries (Bangladesh, China, Hong Kong, India, Indonesia, Japan, Korea, Malaysia, Mongolia, Myanmar, Philippines, Singapore, Taiwan, Thailand, and USA). And being a part of this wonderful event was great honor for me.

The main congress contained a series of educational lectures and research presentations. There were 42 presentations in 10 sessions (Supplementary 1-3) composed of the latest findings of gynecologic cancer, including cervical, ovarian, and endometrial cancers, as well as the future of minimally invasive/radical/debulking surgery, radiotherapy (RT), hyperthermic intraperitoneal chemotherapy (HIPEC), chemotherapy, targeted therapy, and immunotherapy. The program was as followed

Session A-1. Cervical Cancer

Session A-2. Epithelial Ovarian Cancer

Session A-3. Guidelines & Positioning Statement

Session A-4. Chemotherapy/Target Agents and Beyond

Session A-5. Clinical Trials in Asia

Session A-6. Junior Session

Session A-7. Endometrial Cancer

Special session 1. Platinum-sensitive recurrent ovarian cancer : current practice and future outlook

Special session 2. 3D laparoscopic surgery in gynecologic cancer

Special session 3. HPV vaccine update

In this year, I participated in the junior session. I presented the preliminary report of my recently research outcome in the topic of "prevalence of anal intraepithelial neoplasia in women with cervical intraepithelial neoplasia". This session allowed the young gynecologic oncologists to present their works, debate the issues and share opinions. It was a great opportunity to share and improve knowledges of our work and interesting issue. I personally believe collaborative and creative learning environment of this workshop will enhance and drive the growth mindset of young doctors who will be the important human resource of our society.

In the end of the first day, a banquet welcoming the participants was held at Rameda Plaza Suwon Hotel, Suwon (Figure 1). This meeting had been to deepen friendship with the old friends and make new friends, and to give the opportunity for young doctors who representative from member countries to express their impression and keep it as a good memory.

Overall, I learned many new knowledge, new innovative surgical techniques and other modality of treatment from the all of world-class experts. Several speakers have delivered interesting lectures in both days of workshop. In addition, this workshop showed me that there is still so much to learn and that there are so many generous people who willing to share what they know with us. And last but not least, it was a great chance to meet the experts and make new friends with those who share the same passion in gynecologic oncology. This chance was a wonderful opportunity to enhance partnership and collaborate for the further advancement of women's healthcare in Asia and in all over the world. Collaboration brings fresh perspectives to academic research and big data. Massive quantities of health care data accumulating from collaborative networks and the advanced analytics that can becoming a tool for the new knowledge generation.

I would like to thank the ASGO for organized a meaningful and productive workshop and gave the opportunity for me to able to participate. I am glad to have part of this workshop and wholeheartedly recommend it to anyone with an interest in gynecologic oncology, especially young gynecologic oncologists to attend ASGO Workshop in the future.

Memoirs on the Founding of Asian Society of Gynecologic Oncology (ASGO)

Eleven years have passed since ASGO was established in 2008.

I, as one of the original members and 2nd president, look back at that time.

Two important meetings, the 6th IGCS biannual meeting in Japan, and the 9th IGCS biannual meeting in Korea, had just been held. Both meetings were well organized and quite successful. As a result, JSGO and KSGOC gained the confidence they needed to do something on an international scale.

It was in this atmosphere, in 2002, the late Professor Shiro Nozawa, of Keio University, Japan, a former JSGO president, and Professor Jae-Wook Kim, of Yonsei University, Korea, a former KSGOC (now KSGO) president, launched the Japan-Korea Gynecologic Cancer Joint Meeting (now JKGOG), in order to discuss various issues in gynecologic oncology. In line with these events, and the atmosphere which they in turn created, several doctors from both societies discussed the necessity of an International Asian Society in the field of gynecologic oncology, addressing Asia specific disease, prevailing patterns, similar culture, mentality, and so forth.

It was under these circumstances that several professors from JSGO and KSGO, including Prof. Soon-Beom Kang, Prof. Joo-Hyun Nam, Prof. Ikuo Konishi, Prof. Shingo Fujii, and myself, discussed establishing the ASGO. At that time, Prof. Shingo Fujii, the President-Elect of IGCS at that time, gave us a lot of valuable advice. Then, on November 27th of 2008, the inaugural meeting of ASGO was held during the 7th JKGOG Joint meeting in Seoul. Several doctors from all around South Asia were invited. That group became the inauguration committee, and they elected Prof. Soon Beom Kang of Seoul National Univ. as the first president of ASGO. The committee then decided on the first council members, who were representatives in the field of gynecologic oncology in various Asian countries and also decided on the date of the first council meeting. The first council members consisted of 4 doctors from Japan, 5 from Korea, and one each from China, Hong Kong, India, Indonesia, Philippines, Singapore, Taiwan and Thailand.

The first council meeting was held in Seoul on June 25th and 26th in 2009. At the council meeting, many issues were discussed and approved, such as Bylaws, council member positions, and the establishment of a biannual ASGO meeting. It was also decided that an international workshop should be held during the year between the ASGO meetings. The essence of the Bylaw is that the ASGO welcomes not only doctors from Asia, but also doctors from all over the world, who agree with the spirit of ASGO and are devoted to it. The purpose of ASGO is to contribute to the development of science, centered upon gynecologic cancer, through research and exchange of information in medical science, in addition to friendship among its members. Various council member positions were also appointed, such as, first president, Prof. Soon-Beom Kang, first Secretary Treasurer, Prof. Jae-Weon Kim, and the position of President-Elect was given to (me) Prof. Toshiharu Kamura. Other council members were assigned to the Scientific Program Committee.

The first biannual meeting was held in Tokyo, Japan, in November, 2009. Although the preparation period was a little short, more than 200 hundred doctors participated from 9 countries, and 81 papers were presented. The highlight of the meeting was a congratulatory lecture by Prof. Ted Trimble of the USA, as a representative of IGCS. Since then, the number of participants and presentations has increased continuously, reaching 518 participants and 317 presentations at the 5th ASGO meeting in 2017.

The first international workshop was held by Prof. Soon-Beom Kang, in Seoul, Korea in July, 2010. Since then 4 workshops have been held. Each WS has provided excellent lectures for all participants.

As for the ASGO official journal, thanks to the kind cooperation and support of KSGO, JGO, which was the English version of the KSGO official journal, became the official journal of ASGO at the third council meeting in July, 2010. Prof. Hee-Sug Ryu of Korea was the first editor in chief of JGO as an official journal of ASGO. He contributed greatly to pushing this journal forward, allowing it to take rank with high class international journals. The second editor-in-chief, Prof. Jae-Weon Kim has continued to push for higher quality.

One of the important missions of ASGO is collaboration with other international societies. At the meeting of IGCS, ESGO, SGO, and ASCO, a representative of ASGO has been invited to a liaison conference, to get to know each other, and to discuss how to promote gynecologic oncology. In the above international meeting, an ASGO booth has been set up to distribute circulars of the ASGO biannual meeting. When I was president, at the IGCS biannual meeting in Vancouver in October 2012, I had an opportunity to introduce ASGO in the special session. ESGO provided an ASGO session in Liverpool in 2013.

Thus, the young society of ASGO has come to be globally recognized and continues to carry out our mission.

In conclusion, I hope that ASGO will continue to grow and play an important role in the development of gynecologic oncology, not only for Asia, but for the world.

Dear ASGO Members,

On behalf of the organizing committee of Asian Society of Gynecologic Oncology (ASGO), I am very pleased and thank you for your kind support and interest to ASGO as always.

ASGO will participate in the 2014 IGCS as exhibitor, which will be held on 8-11 November, 2014 in MCEC (Melbourne Convention Exhibition Center), Melbourne, Australia. In the exhibition booth, we will promote ASGO membership and the 4th annual meeting of ASGO. If you are planning to participate in 2014 IGCS, please visit our booth and get complimentary approval of our most advanced information of the 4th annual meeting of ASGO and find ASGO are waiting for you!
